Dear Sir or Madam:

For two centuries, America had been admired by the rest of the world as the “land of the free.” And it is this freedom that fostered the information revolution. Gave birth to Yahoo. So that Yahoo's employees have great jobs. Yahoo's shareholders get to enjoy great wealth. Jerry Yang and David Filo made it to the Forbes 400.

Unfortunately, not every country in the world gets to enjoy freedom the American way.

And there are always enemies of democracy that attempt to use all kinds of excuses to subjugate the rest of the world under their despicable ambition. On Monday, June 8th, the world had witnessed such evil ambitions in action again. This time, Beijing flagrantly insists that all PC makers must install Green Dam – Youth Escort on all units that are to be sold in China by the First of July.

I urge you to reject Chinese Communists' demand.

The benefit of the Chinese PC market is not worth Yahoo's reputation. An IT firm's role in our society, above all, is to enhance the qualities of our lives by facilitating the free flow of information. So that everyone in the world can experience democracy by freely speaking their mind and expressing themselves.

It is a great irony that Beijing announced its despicable intention to dictate the information flow only four days after the twentieth anniversary of Tiananmen Square. Without democracy, there will be no “free” markets. Without free markets, there will be no capitalism that eventually gave birth to the information revolution and Yahoo.

Let freedom ring.

Sincerely,

Yi-Chang (Leo) Wang
